

AXA WF US Credit Short Duration IG UA m (H) GBP

Fund Manager's Comment

Risk assets were again positive during the month of September as the Fed began its rate cutting cycle, in-line with expectations. The September FOMC meeting concluded with a 25bp rate cut and median dot plot indicates an additional 50bps of cuts this year. Trends around employment and economic growth are showing better trends; however, labor market weakness remains a key downside risk. Treasuries were mostly firmer with the curve flattening. The 2-year yield was about flat at 3.61%, while the 30-year yield tightened -20bps to 3.73%. Tariff noise had been somewhat muted, but during the month of September, President Trump announced several sector tariffs covering pharma, trucking, and furniture. US equities were higher, with the S&P 500 returning +3.94%. This is the fifth straight monthly gain for the S&P 500. US IG and US HY indices posted total returns of +1.50% and +0.76%, respectively. US IG spreads tightened -5bps.

Primary issuance in September totaled $226bn, which was significantly above the 5-year average of $148bn and the initial forecast of ~$165bn. New issuance during the month was led by Industrials which accounted for $91.6bn (40.5%) of issuance, while Financials issued $67.3bn (30%) and Utilities issued $55.5bn (24.6%). September was the 5th largest month of issuance on record. Long end issuance increased to 15% ($33bn) which was well received by the market. M&A funding was also active in September with $17bn issued, an increase from $9bn in August. In 3Q25, $37.4bn of M&A funding was above the $24.3bn issued in 2Q25 but well below the $70.6bn in 1Q25. There has been $132bn of M&A funding YTD in 2025, which is 22% below the pace of $170bn in 2024 YTD. New issue supply is up +3.27% y/y. New issue supply for October is projected to be $90bn, which is below the 5-year average of $95bn as we enter earnings blackouts.

Industrials (+49bps excess return) outperformed Financials (+46bps excess return) and Utilities (+48bps) in September. BBB-rated credits (+61bps excess return) outperformed A-rated credits (+41bps) and AA-rated credits (+13bp). The best performing sectors were Health Insurance (+92bps excess return), Independents (+91bps) and Oil Field Services (+90bps), while the worst performing sectors were Cable Satellite (+4bps) and Chemicals (+18bps).

In September, the AXA WF US Credit Short Duration Fund underperformed its performance indicator, the ICE BofA Merrill Lynch 1-3 Year US Corporate Index (both net-of-fees and gross-of-fees, USD). The main driver of performance was negative yield curve effect. Duration effect, security selection and sector allocation all had a neutral contribution on performance. The index posted +43bps of total return for the month as 2-year US treasury yields were unchanged at 3.61%. The index posted +8bps of excess return as credit spreads tightened. The index's average OAS was -2bps tighter and ended the month at +49bps. The fund aims to maintain a yield advantage relative to the performance indicator (4.32% yield to worst relative to 4.18%).

The outlook for the US Investment Grade market is neutral as the US economy shows resilience in the face of uncertain trade policy influences, while yields may benefit from lower benchmark rates. Macro remains supportive as the Fed eases monetary policy, and corporate fundamentals have been stable. Valuations have been running at the lower end of the range in spread. Sentiment remains positive as tariff impacts have been manageable and risk appetite is healthy. Technicals have been strong with supply running slightly ahead of last year's run rate and expected to be down on a net basis for the year, while flows have been positive. Within sectors, we are overweight Financials and Telecommunications and underweight Technology & Electronics, Consumer Goods, Basic Industry and Retail.
